Two unaddressed envelopes each contained the photograh of a pretty young girl. The pictures were taken in Cleveland and had the name of the photographer in the corner. Through

In another part of the room a letter was shown to me that was stamped and plainly addressed to a man in Burlington, Vermont. This letter had been held by a postmaster in one of the Western States and advertised for thirty days. The Dead Letter Office will send it to the man in Vermont, asking him to return the envelope to the Washington office. They will then send it to the Western postmaster, demanding an explanation of his conduct in holding a letter legibly addressed to another town and State. In one corner of the department sits a woman, of whom the ordinary mortal is inclined to think as the possessor of some system of occult reasoning. It is her duty to decipher illegible addresses and to complete these that are unfinished. This latter is not so difficult, as she is supplied with directories of all the cities and large towns in the United States, and when a letter is received directed John Jay, Wall street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, she cruses the city and state and substitutes "New York." BARGAIN CLEARING SALE, Saturday, January 9th, 1897.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 9th, 1897.

lacktriangleN our eleven years merchandising here we have gained the experience that our public are right up to date and they will not have goods that have been carried from season to season. So we cannot keep such a store as we uant to keep, and as our people expect us to keep, without making sacrifices of lots of goods at the end of each season, so as to be in condition of room and cash to take on the new goods. We take this loss cheerfully, because by disposing of this surplus stock at once, it gives us cash, and in cash investments for the next season comes our profit.

OF THIS SALE ARE STRICTLY CASH. NO EXCHANGES AFTER DAY NO GOODS RESERVED.

THE CONDITIONS

OUR public know when we advertise a clearing sale, that we make a cut on regular prices, that makes it pay to buy, even if in excess of present wants. We believe that we are going to have a greater day's business than the Summer Clearing Sale, when there were many disappointments, because everybody could not receive attention. We propose to augment our sales force so that everybody can be waited on promptly this time. There will be greater bargains and more of them. The articles named below are only to give an idea of what we are going to do-many articles included in the cut and not here named.

production of beet sugar we have the soil and climate to supply all our own needs in this direction without Cuba. Already the world's production of beet sugar exceeds that of cane sugar by more than one million of tons, but while the United States produced, in 1895, 290,000 tons of cane sugar, only 30,000 tons of beet sugar were produced. The case sugar area of the country is fully occupied, but the beet sugar area has scarcely been entered upon at all. The 4,236,000 tons of beet sugar produced in 1895 were grown in Germany, Austria, France, Russia, Belgium, Holland and Sweder and a few smaller European countries and yet in none of these are the conditions of soil and climate for sugar beet culture superior to those to be found over a large area of the United States. Here is a field for the farmers who have been growing more wheat and corn than they could sell at a renumerative price. They would not need to look abroad for a market for beet sugar. The home demand would absorb two million tons annually, and until this amount was exceeded the beet sugar farmers would have their market at their own doors. At the low price of two cents per pound, or forty dollars a ton, this would keep eighty millions of dollars at home that are now sent abroad for sugar. As a matter of fact, the country has been paying more than one hundred millions annually for raw sngar for the last five years, and as we increase in population Why not occupy this field and thus add a most valuable and extensive article of Six Subscriptions, agricultural production to those we now Ten Subscriptions, 1895, while a relatively small amount compared with the product of Germany and the other sugar-growing countries, is sufficient to constitute a guarantee of successful sngar culture when the farmers of the country once turn their attention to the cultivation of this staple. There are now three beet sugar factories in California, one in Utab, two in Nebraska, one in New Mexico, a small one in Virginia and one just established in Wisconsin. Within this belt, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, beet culture is possible and when the nin tactories now in operation have been increased in number to twice the 405 factories now in operation in Germany, the greatest beet sugar country in the world, we shall only have reached the capacity of supplying our wants in sugar. There should be as much enterprise ir enuity and science among the farmer of the United States as among those of any country in the world, and attention is called to this industry as one capable of indefinite expansion. Give beet sugar an exhaustive trial. It will help to secountries for our sugar supply,-Phila.

Millions in Cornstalks.

Ship Builder Ceamp Discovers Some Mar velous Uses for the Article.

"I can afford to buy all the cornstalks in the United States for $2 a ton and make money utilizing them." So spoke Edwin H. Cramp, of the great Philadelphia ship-building tirm, to Congressman Hull, of Iowa, and Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, at a dinner in Washington a few nights ago. Mr. Cramp went on to explain that he had discovered many wonderful uses for the stalks. He has had a chemist making experiments for Some time ago he discovered that the stalks could be made into cellulose which, when used to line ships of war, would make them practically water proof. This discovery was made public at the time, but since then Mr. Cramp has found many other still more wonderful uses to which cornstalks can be put. Through his chemist he has developed an absolutely perfect smokeless powder, which is far superior to the European product. Pursuing his investigation further he has discovered that the elements enter ing into the composition of the stalk of the corn can be utilized for the production of a food for cattle better than any thing now on the market. Other uses to which the hitherto despised stalks can be put are the production of alcohol-mattings, paper and curpets. The experiments are still being conducted and Mr. Cramp expects to find still other uses of the stalk.

Mr. Cramp explained to his congressional friends the practical results of his experiments and accidental discoveries and they were dazed by the enormous prospects opened up to them. Plants for the production of all these various articles, said Mr. Cramp, could be erected for $150,000 each and they would conof twenty-five miles in any of the corn regions of the country.

Hitherto the farmers have been burn ing their cornstalks, which they have Francisco to the state of the state of the Mrs. Du be enabled to sell the states for $2 a ton. An acre yields three tons. A farmer with 100 acres of corn land could add $600 to his annual earnings.

Mr. Cramp proceeded to show that the direct benefits to the farmers of the six great corn-growing states of the west-Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio-would be over $250,000,-000 per annum on an acreage of less than 40,000,000. Mr. Cramp said he was prepared to invest a very large sum of money in a chain of manufactories for the bi-products of the corn and that he would as certainly get his friends into the scheme with him.

PHILADELPHIA SCRAPPLE. NEW YORKERS LIKE IT, BITT THEY CAN-NOT MAKE IT.

The sign on the dishful of gray matter read: "Philadelphia Scrapple." The man who was going through Washington Market, and saw it, smiled as if he was a bit ashamed of himself, says the New York Sun, and looked all around to see if he was being watched before he slid over to the stand and said : "Give me two pounds."

The man with the white apron picked up a knife and cut off a chunk. "Don't want me to weigh it, do you?" he said grinning. "I don't care," answered the man,

But I guesa you might as well." "Oh, I don't have to weigh that stuff any more," said the white aproned man, tossing the piece he had cut into the scales, the dial of which showed exactly two pounds. "I've cut so much of it." "You don't mean to say that you sell much of it here?" said the man somewhat eagerly. "I thought that was a Philadelphia dish." "We sell about 800 pounds a week at this stand," was the reply, "and the business is mereasing. There are half a dozen stands in the market that sell as much as we do." "It's made here, I suppose?" said the ustomer, getting over his feeling of shame. "Not on your life," was the reply. 'It's all imported from Philadelphia, every bit of it. All our big butcher houses have tried to make it here, but they never can hit it somehow. They've had Philadelphia men come over here to show them, too, but somehow they can't turn out Philadelbhia scrapple, in New York. M. Nelidoff, Russian ambassador to Turkey, acting as spokesman for the oncert of European nations, has notified the Sultan that the agreement of the powers upon the question of the enforcecent of reforms in Turkey is perfect. and that they demand that there shall be no delay on the part of the Porte in iving assent to the proposals for such ietorms submitted by the representatives of the powers.

The ambassadors will hold a confer ence to-morrow, the purpose of which is understood to be the discussion of the question of resorting to coverve meas ores to compel the Saltan to put the proposed reforms into operation, should such action become necessary to the enforcement. The matter of the time of putting the measures into operation will also be dis The financial scheme formulated by M. Nelidoff is understood to involve the evision of the entire Ottoman debt under a guarantee of the European powers signatory to the agreement, The plan also contemplates the full control of the European powers over the furkish revenues, with the allotting of a fixed sum for the maintenance of the army and navy and for the purposes of the Sultan's private purse, and further provides that the Sultan's appointment of his ministers shall be subject to the
